Unit 4 — Australia and New Zealand

Track E · Klasse 10 · Niveau E

Learning objectives I

- I can read a short comparative text on Australia and New Zealand and identify three points of difference.
- I can recognise basic Māori-English vocabulary and Aboriginal-English place names in context.
- I can write a 200-word comparative regional portrait.

Lead-in I

Maja's class compared two pen-pal letters: one from Brisbane, one from Wellington. The Brisbane letter talked about heat and cricket. The Wellington letter talked about wind, te reo Māori in the cafés, and a national mood that the writer described as small-country, big-listening.

Reading I

Reading — Two Pen-Pals

Australia is a continent of about 26 million; New Zealand is two main islands of about 5.2 million. While both share British colonial history, Indigenous languages are visible on different scales. In New Zealand, te reo Māori is widely audible in news, cafés and government — kia ora is the everyday hello. In Australia, hundreds of Aboriginal languages survive, often more locally audible than nationally so. Place names like Wagga Wagga and Wollongong preserve those languages in plain sight, even when the city itself looks British.

Vocabulary — Māori-English (basic) kia ora (hello / good health), whānau (extended family), aroha (love / compassion), iwi (tribe),

Reading II

marae (meeting ground), te reo (the language).

Vocabulary — Aboriginal-English place names
Wagga Wagga (place of many crows / Wiradjuri), Wollongong (sound of the sea / Dharawal), Parramatta (place where eels lie down / Darug), Toowoomba (place of swamp), Canberra (meeting place).

Practise I

Niveau E — controlled

1. Match: kia ora → hello; whānau → family; iwi → tribe.
2. T or F: NZ has c. 5.2 million people; Australia is less populous than NZ; Wagga Wagga has a Wiradjuri origin.

Niveau E — productive

3. Build 4 sentences comparing AU and NZ on language, geography, population, and Indigenous visibility.

Your turn I

Comparative portrait, 200 words. Compare Australia and New Zealand past stereotypes. Use 2 comparatives / superlatives + 1 whereas + 1 kia ora or Indigenous place name in context.

Sample

Australia and New Zealand share a British colonial history but diverge sharply in scale. Australia is a continent of about 26 million; New Zealand, two main islands of about 5.2 million. The most striking linguistic difference is the visibility of Indigenous languages: in New Zealand, te reo Māori is widely audible in news, cafés, and government — kia ora is the everyday hello. Whereas in Australia, hundreds of Aboriginal languages survive, often more locally audible than nationally so. Place names like Wagga Wagga (Wiradjuri) and Parramatta (Darug) preserve those languages in the streetscape, even when the city itself looks British. Australia is climatically harder; New Zealand is, by most measures, less extreme. Wellington's reputation, however, suggests that 'less extreme' does not mean 'gentle' — the city is the windiest capital in the world.

Your turn II

Reflect I

- I can identify three differences between AU and NZ.
- I can recognise 6 Māori-English / Aboriginal-English words.
- I can write a 200-word comparative regional portrait.
