2. Reading

Read the text and use it for the activities below.

Vocabulary — workplace

shift, line manager, colleague, deadline, expectation, salary, wage, contract, probation, feedback, promotion, performance review, headquarters, branch, freelance, gig work, remote, hybrid.

Reading — A Day at the Bakery (extract)

Mrs Dahl has been running the bakery for thirty-two years. She has been kneading dough by hand for most of that time. Her three apprentices have been showing up at five every morning, six days a week. "It is not romantic," she said when Sam asked, "but it is honest."

Grammar — present perfect continuous

Form: have/has + been + -ing. Use: an action that started in the past and is still going on (or recent enough to feel ongoing).

- Mrs Dahl has been running the bakery for 32 years.
- I have been waiting for the apprenticeship letter.
- They have been working since 5 a.m.

Compare with present perfect simple:

- I have written five applications. (completed actions, focus on result)
- I have been writing all morning. (focus on duration / activity)

3. Practise

Niveau G

1. Choose: present perfect simple or continuous: Mrs Dahl _____ (run) the bakery for 32 years. I _____ (write) three applications this morning.
2. Match: shift → 8-hour block; deadline → due date; feedback → review.

Niveau M

3. Build 4 sentences with present perfect continuous about your real recent activity.

4. Your turn

Job-interview role-play. Pairs. 3 minutes each direction. Interviewer asks 5 questions; interviewee uses 2 present perfect continuous + 2 third conditional structures.

Sample

— What experience do you bring? — I have been doing weekend shifts at my aunt's café for two years. If I had started earlier, I would have more management experience, but I have learned the basics — shift handover, customer questions, food safety.

5. Further reading / listening

- BBC Worklife — short articles.
- The Guardian — Working Lives.
