

Unit 1 — Identity in a Global World

Track E • Klasse 10 • Niveau E

Niveau E

1. Reading

Read the text, then answer in full sentences.

The question 'where are you from?' is rarely as simple as the asker thinks. For many people, the honest answer involves three places, two languages and one airport. Identity, in a more globalised world, has stopped being a single sticker on a passport. It is now closer to a set of overlapping memberships, some of which contradict each other without being false. The interesting question is no longer 'which one are you?' but 'how do these get on together?'

2. Practise

1. Choose mixed conditional: (past unreal → present result) If she _____ (move) earlier, she _____ (live) there now.
2. Match: globalisation → cross-border movement; transnational → across nations; cosmopolitan → city-of-the-world.
3. Build 4 mixed conditional sentences about a real or imagined identity / decision.

3. Write

Identity reflection, 200 words. Write past flag-and-passport identity. Use 2 mixed conditionals + 1 third conditional + 1 both ... and ...

Lösungen Controlled. 1. had moved / would be living.

2. all true.

Productive. 3. Open.

T1. overlapping memberships, not single sticker; some contradict without being false; if parents hadn't moved; would not be living between two cities.

T2. simpler than the asker thinks; three places, two languages, one airport; a single sticker on a passport; how do these get on together?

T3. had grown up / would be; had applied / would have got; were / wouldn't have taken; would have found / had looked.

T4. Open.
