Unit 9 — School Rules and Rights

Track G+M · Klasse 7 · Niveau G/M

Learning objectives I

- I can read a short text about a school rule and explain who is affected and why the rule exists.
- I can use modals of obligation (must, mustn't, should, can) and passive present to write about rules.
- I can write a 100-word opinion text on a school rule with one reason for, one reason against, and a conclusion.

Lead-in I

Ms. Reyes wrote the new school rules on the board: phones in boxes at the gate, no caps in lessons, no soft drinks in the classrooms. The class read the list. Aisha put up her hand. ”Who made these rules?” Ms. Reyes said, ”Adults.” Aisha said, ”Adults who go to school here?” Ms. Reyes paused. ”That’s a fair question. We should put it on the agenda.”

Vocabulary I

- must
- mustn’t
- should
- shouldn’t
- can
- can’t
- have to

Reading I

Reading text — Phones in Pouches
Ardenfield Comprehensive in Manchester has a ”phones-in-pouches” rule. Every morning, students put their phones into a magnetic pouch and keep the pouch with them all day. The pouch can only be unlocked by a teacher or in the office. The headteacher, Mr Atta, says the rule has cut bullying messages and fights at break time. Some pupils complain it feels like a prison rule. Mr Atta replies: ”We are open to a different rule. Bring me one that works.”

Language focus — modals of obligation/permission

Reading II

Modal	Meaning	Example
must	strong obligation	Students must put phones in the pouch.
mustn't	prohibition	You mustn't unlock the pouch yourself.

Modal	Meaning	Example
should	recommendation	We should review the rule.
shouldn't	recommendation against	We shouldn't ban phones without discussion.

Reading III

Modal	Meaning	Example
can	permission/ability	Teachers can help if there's an emergency.

Modal	Meaning	Example
have to	external obligation	We have to wear the school uniform.

Reading IV

Mustn't (prohibition) and don't have to (no obligation) are not the same. You mustn't park here — forbidden. You don't have to park here — you can if you want, but you don't need to.

Language focus — present passive
We use the passive when the action matters more than who does it.

- The pouches are sold at the office. (we don't care who sells)
- The rule is reviewed every term.
- Pupils are asked to put phones in pouches.

Form: to be (in tense) + past participle.

Practise I

Niveau G — controlled
A. Modal gap-fill.

1. Students _____ (must / can) bring water bottles, but they _____ (mustn't / can't) bring soft drinks.
2. We _____ (should / mustn't) wear smart shoes for trips.
3. Teachers _____ (can / mustn't) ask pupils to leave class if needed.

B. Active → passive transformation.

Practise II

4. The teacher locks the pouch. → The pouch ___ .
5. The school sells the pouches. → The pouches ___ .

Niveau M — productive
C. Rule-writing. Turn each idea into one rule using a modal.

6. (no caps in lessons) → ___
7. (everyone respects break time) → ___
8. (food only in the canteen) → ___

Practise III

D. Passive in context. Rewrite using the passive.

9. The headteacher reviews the rules every term. → ___ .
10. The teachers approve all changes. → ___ .

Your turn I

Writing task — One Rule I Would Change. Write 100–120 words about one rule at your school you would keep and one you would change. For each, use a modal and one passive structure.

Sample student response (Niveau M, 116 words)
One rule I would keep is the no-running rule in the corridors. The corridors are crowded between lessons, and someone could easily get hurt. Pupils must walk and step aside for younger students. One rule I would change is the cap rule. Caps are banned in lessons, but they don't disturb anyone. I think pupils should be allowed to wear them in winter when the heating is off, although I would also accept a rule that says caps are only allowed if the windows are open. The point is that small rules are noticed every day. Big ones are easier to forget.

Reflect I

- I can pick out who is restricted by a rule and who benefits.
- I can use must / mustn't / should / can with reason.
- I can write a short opinion text using a passive structure.
